The play, to be cast by all-adults, is designed for a children's audience and will be presented by the theater group in early August. The Theater is also seeking backstage workers. Directors are Dan Griffin and producer is Michael Hamm.

PLASTER RUBBLE—This bed in a room in Rita Marti's Bay St. Louis home is strewn with plaster rubble resulting from a ceiling collapse last week. Ms. Marti said she hired a Bay St. Louis contractor to re-roof her home, paid him $496, and he left town shortly after beginning the job. Bay St. Louis Police told Ms. Marti the man did not apply for a building permit, and added he is an alleged parole violator. (Staff photo-Rich Adams)

Issue triggers debate

County Schools approve bus use by handicapped children

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Therapy Swimming Program Inc. (TSP) was granted the school bus yesterday by the Hancock County School Board following a lengthy debate. The bus will be used to transport 12 handicapped children in the school district to therapeutic swimming classes for approximately five weeks.

The board at a previous meeting had directed Mike Necaise, county transportation supervisor, to ask a representative of the Bay School system if they would provide the bus service in conjunction with the county system, each school district providing transportation on alternate weeks.

Necaise told board members he had contacted Donald Caldwell, Bay school transportation supervisor, and Caldwell told Necaise he does not feel the Bay School system can provide transportation for independent organizations.

Necaise said Caldwell based his feelings upon a letter from the Mississippi Department of Education which includes the following statement, "The schools to which children will be transported shall be under the administration and supervision of the regular school district officials." Sherry Ponder, a TSP volunteer, reading an excerpt from Digest of County School Fiscal Laws of Mississippi amended in accordance with Mississippi Code of 1972, replied, "Transportation may be provided for such crippled and physically handicapped children as may be designated by the authorities...even though such children might not otherwise be entitled to transportation." SCHOOL BUS—Page 6A

Bay woman taken by bogus roofer

By RICH ADAMS

Bay St. Louis Police are searching for an alleged parole violator who passed himself off as a roofing contractor and "took" a Bay St. Louis senior citizen for $496.

Bay police Chief Douglas Williams said his department is looking for the alleged "rip-off artist" who began to re-roof the home of Rita Marti on Austin Lane and left the project incomplete without covering the open roof.

Recent rains brought damage to the roof, causing the plaster ceiling in one bedroom of Ms. Marti's home to collapse.

Ms. Marti said the man began to re-roof her home weeks ago, told her his mother was sick in New Orleans, and left the job unfinished.

"I waited 14 days for him to return," the 70-year-old Bay St. Louis resident said.

"It rained Sunday and the ceiling fell in on a bed," she lamented.

"The insurance company came by and looked at it, but they said they will not give me one penny because the roof was not covered," she added.

Ms. Marti said she gave the man $496 to start the job, and added she recently discovered he had never applied to the city for a building permit.

"The police were here and found out he had never applied for a building permit," she said.

"The police are investigating the matter now," she added.

Central Builders of Waveland has taken over the task of re-roofing the home.

One of the bedrooms, however, has a gaping hole in the ceiling where plaster collapsed and the room is littered with rubble.

The remainder of the ceilings have been heavily damaged by water, according to the owner, and she said she does not know if another ceiling will collapse.

"I had a home on the waterfront when Camille hit in 1969, and now this home looks like a hurricane hit it," Ms. Marti said Thursday.

Chief Williams said the man is wanted by the Hancock County Sheriff's Department for parole violations.

Fire destroys vacation home

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

A vacation home in Shady Acre Estates subdivision behind Hayward Spiers Garage on US-90 burned to the ground yesterday afternoon in spite of efforts by several fire departments to extinguish the blaze.

Hymen Rayborn, a next door neighbor, said the home belonged to a Mr. Fairchild who lives in Metairie, La.

Rayborn added the owners had not visited the home for approximately three weeks.

Russell Bell, who was at the scene, said he reported the fire at approximately 2:10 a.m.

"I saw some smoke coming from the home. I went to a nearby bar and reported the fire," Bell explained.

The fire departments of East Hancock Volunteer, Waveland, Clermont Harbor Volunteer and Bay Side Park Volunteer responded to the call.

Waveland fireman Mike Willumits, after unsuccessful efforts by he and others to extinguish the fire, said, "The problems are always the same, not enough water or water pressure and not enough time."

Water was used from tanks on the four fire trucks because no fire hydrants are located near the home.

Waveland fireman Jimmy Varnett added, "We used some 2,200 gallons of water on this fire."

Society re-activates spay-neuter program

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

The Bay-Waveland Humane Society has reopened its spay-neuter program for domestic animals in Hancock County.

"According to numerous studies, one litter of four puppies can result in 4,000 offspring in seven years," Mrs. Clifford Backlund, former society president,

Lumpkin announces candidacy

Herion K. Lumpkin, 36, of Leetown announces his candidacy for Hancock County Beat Two Supervisor.

Lumpkin said he has resigned as manager of the Evans Tobacco Co. to run in the August 7 primary election. The Hancock North Central High School graduate is married to Christine Sanders. They have two children, Ronnie, 11 and John Paul, 6.

Lumpkin served in the U.S. Navy from 1961 until 1963. He remained in the reserve from 1963 to 1967.

"I will be available to the voters of Beat Two on a full time basis," Lumpkin promises.

"If elected," he continued, "I will strive to establish a sanitary land fill in rural Beat Two, and establish a county patrol for the rural areas of Beat Two."

The candidate added, "I also plan to restore and maintain the sand beaches in the district."

reports. The humane society last Monday received $500 from the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to help finance Phase Four of the program.

Owners pay 50 percent of the cost to spay or neuter a pet and the society pays the other 50 percent under the program.

Waveland Board of Aldermen Tuesday authorized $200 be given to the program.

Mrs. Emile Malandra, the society's treasurer, notes the Bay St. Louis Council may also allocate some money to the program in August.

During the supervisors' Monday meeting, Board President Alton Keller pointed out, "We have realized for a long time that domestic animals have caused a population problem in the county."

Veterinarian Robert Akers, whose clinic is located on St. John Street, will remove the ovaries of the female animals in conjunction with the program.

Ms. Backlund says the neutering program will be continuous.

"A new phase," Ms. Malandra says, "is instituted whenever the society acquires a surplus of funds over $400."

The society has spent some $2,000 in the first three phases, Ms. Backlund reports.

The number of strays in the county has been significantly reduced since implementation of the spay-neuter program, she reported.

Stray animals are kept at the dog shelter in Bay St. Louis for 14 days. If the animals are not adopted or claimed by their owner during this time limit they are gassed with carbon monoxide.

Chas. Russ announces for Office

Charles A. Russ, III of Pearlington has announced his candidacy for District One supervisor.

Russ, graduated from Long Beach High School, Perkinson Junior College, and Mississippi State University.

He is a veteran of the Korean Conflict, and served overseas for 18 months.

Following discharge, he served six years with the U.S. Army Reserve Signal Intelligence Group.

He has been associated in lumber related industries and served as Beat One supervisor from 1966-72.

He and his wife, Nahay have two children, Charles Lesley, 21, and Katherine Lois, 16.

"I am seeking this office in response to many voters in Beat One urging me to again serve as their supervisor. I plan to see each of you in the final weeks of this election," the candidate stated.

Visiting magistrate to open Hancock Court term Monday

By RICH ADAMS

Attala County Circuit Court Judge Niles McNeil will preside over the opening week of Hancock County Circuit Court's July term where he is scheduled to hear some 47 criminal cases beginning Monday, according to Court Clerk Henry Otis.

McNeil will substitute for Judge Kosta Vlahos who was originally scheduled to hear the cases but is attending a training seminar with other local judges, Otis explained.

Judge Vlahos will return to the bench here July 16, the clerk added.

A trial is scheduled July 10 for Fritz Garcia, charged with rape.

Garcia's case has been carried over from the April court term, and he is represented by Long Beach attorney Richard Yarbrough.

Also slated for a July 10 trial is a case of alleged embezzlement involving Tillet Oliver.

Oliver is charged with allegedly embezzling money from the L.B. Price

Merchantile Co., Inc., where she was employed as a salesman.

The theft allegedly occurred between June 16, 1977 and January 2, 1978.

She is represented by Bay St. Louis attorney Cornelius Ladner.

Set for hearing on July 11 is a case involving William J. Doyle, who faces five charges of alleged arson.

He is represented by Walter Gex III.

Also slated for trial on July 11 is Daryle Smith, who is charged with setting Bay Junior High School on fire on July 18, 1978.

He is represented by James Tucker of Bay St. Louis.

The court will hear a case involving Joseph Henry on July 12. Henry is charged with one count of uttering forgery and one count of grand larceny.

Henry allegedly withdrew $76.25 from Merchant's Bank on Coleman Avenue in Waveland on Dec. 21, 1978, from an account held by Michael Simpkins.

He also allegedly stole a $300 stereo amplifier on Dec. 28, 1978.

Another case of alleged forgery is scheduled for trial this term involving Solomon McQueen.

The charges allege McQueen forged a $244 U.S. Government check belonging to Melvin B. Cason on April 15, 1976.

Perry Feigel will face a charge of alleged "trespass by peeping tom as a COURT TERM—Page 6A

Constable A. C. Carver runs again

A.C. Carver, 55, of Route 2 Box 731, Bay St. Louis is seeking re-election as Hancock County Beat Four Constable. The self employed Bay St. Louis native began serving as constable in 1976.

He is owner of Carver Trucking. Carver attended Lakeside School for eight years.

"Re-elect me for constable of Beat Four," he says, "I'm honest, dependable and sincere."

"Your vote and support will be appreciated," he adds.

Unwelcome visitors live in Hancock County homes

By RICH ADAMS

A 200 million-year-old creature may be silently waiting behind your kitchen cabinet door, ready to contaminate food and spread disease.

Descendants of the prehistoric species still thrive in modern homes today, a 40-day lifespan, adapting to anything in the house and producing up to 34 offspring in that time.

The pest is more than a thilly, and it comes from view when you turn on the light.

The roach is a common household pest, and it is the cockroach that is the most common. It is a small, brown, oval-shaped insect, and it is found in most homes.

the house is almost impossible to exterminate without professional equipment and knowhow.

The larger flying American roach and smaller brownish, and more persistent German roach are the two main species which thrive in the area, and can survive in homes regardless of the state of cleanliness, according to a local pest control expert.

Richard Smith, owner of Ralston's Pest Control, St. Louis, said the roach is a common household pest, and it is the cockroach that is the most common.

Bro. Barker begins second term as New Orleans Province head

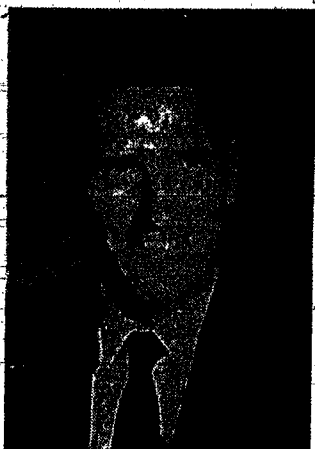

Brother Lee Barker, S.C. has been elected to a second term as provincial of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart, New Orleans Province.

The General Council in Rome, Italy, recently made official his reappointment and the membership of the Provincial Council.

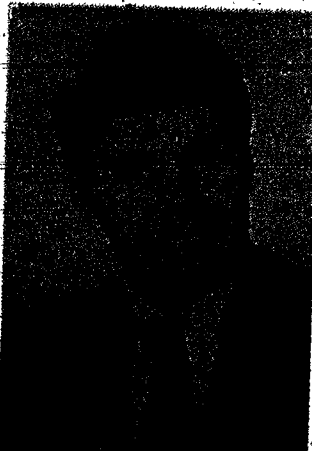

Serving as members of his council in this new term of office are Brothers Mark

Thornton, Xavier Werneth, Paul Montero, and Felician Fourrier.

A member of the provincial Council since 1961, Brother Lee began his teaching career at St. Luke's Elementary School in the Bronx, New York.

BRO. LEE BARKER

BRO. PAUL MONTERO

After following the studies of the Grand Novitiate in Rome in 1957, he was named to guide young men in training to become Brothers of the Sacred Heart at Daphne, Alabama.

He took over duties as director principal at St. Aloysius High School in New Orleans in 1963. Two years later he relinquished the reins of director and continued as principal.

He was twice stationed at St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis, the last time as principal from 1966 to 1976.

Earlier, Brother Lee taught at Menard Memorial High School in Alexandria, La.

Brother Xavier Werneth, currently director and principal at E. D. White Catholic High School in Thibodaux, is newly elected to the Provincial Council.

Also beginning terms as provincial councillors are Brother Mark Thornton, who served two terms as provincial (1970-1976) and is now president at St. Stanislaus; Brother Paul Montero, director of novices in the New Orleans Province; and Brother Felician Fourrier, recently reappointed by Governor Edwin Edwards to a six-year term on the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education in Baton Rouge.

R for your child's safety

A mother is bathing her playful infant son. Both mother and child are laughing and splashing, thoroughly enjoying themselves. Suddenly the telephone rings, and the young woman rushes to answer it. Unattended, the baby drowns within seconds.

"This sad story is not as uncommon as many of us would like to believe," warns Dr. Albert H. Domm, child safety specialist and former medical director of the Prudential Insurance Company.

According to Dr. Domm, a great number of infants are the victims of bathroom mishaps. Dr. Domm cautions parents to be ever-mindful that it takes only a few short seconds for a child's tiny lungs to fill up with water. "Never leave a child alone in the bathtub, even for an instant."

He also advises parents to test the temperature of the bath with their elbow before placing the baby in the tub. "Parents who overlook this simple step are placing their toddler in danger of being scalded," points out Dr. Domm.

YOU AND YOUR PET

By ROBERT L. STEAR, D.V.M.

Norden Laboratories CATS AND RABIES

Vaccination is one of the most effective ways of protecting your pet from various contagious animal diseases.

And in the case of rabies, when you protect your pet, you also protect yourself.

Rabies is a virus-caused disease that can affect any warm-blooded animal, including man.

The disease is generally transmitted when virus in the saliva of an infected animal enters a bite or other open wound. The virus has an affinity for nerve tissue and travels through the body toward the brain and spinal cord.

Rabies in man or animals can be prevented by vaccination. However, once symptoms develop, the disease is generally fatal.

The man or woman bitten by a rabid animal must risk a series of injections in a race to develop immunity before the disease symptoms become obvious.

Some pet owners have the mistaken impression that cats do not need rabies vaccination. They claim cats live mainly indoors and do not roam as far as dogs.

Unfortunately, these people forget that a cat is a natural hunter and will stalk almost any small animal.

These seemingly wild animals are not uncommon in suburban areas. Even a brief visit outside may be long enough for such an encounter.

Records show about the same number of feline and canine rabies cases reported each year.

When an animal is severely bitten on the head or body, and the virus reaches the spinal cord rapidly, symptoms may develop within 2 to 12 weeks.

With "furious" rabies, animals become alert and aggressive.

Cats that are normally gentle and shy will attack family members and strangers, clawing and biting.

They lose all caution and fear of natural enemies.

Kittens may seem friendly, but will bite viciously even during gentle play.

The classic case of animals "foaming at the mouth" occurs when the muscles of the throat become paralyzed and the animal cannot swallow.

Saliva will then drip from the jaws.

As the disease progresses, the animal may experience convulsions, go into a coma and finally die.

Some animals may develop a type of "dumb" rabies. Pets that are normally affectionate and outgoing become withdrawn and sullen.

Those usually somewhat aloof may be unusually affectionate. Animals with the dumb variety of rabies also develop a paralysis of the throat muscles and appear to have a foreign body lodged in the throat.

Unknowning pet owners may attempt to administer medicine or examine a pet's mouth and throat for a hidden bone fragment.

Fortunately, animals with dumb rabies are not vicious and rarely attempt to bite.

If your pet's behavior changes, isolate it from other animals and people if possible.

These past four years have seen some exciting developments in Hancock County. For example: hundreds of new jobs have been created through our Industrial Development program, giving our local taxpaying citizens an opportunity to stay home and earn a living. And, you can rest assured that more jobs are on the way.

Also, through careful planning and efficient management, the taxpayers of Beat 5 have more paved roads to ride on than ever before in the history of Hancock County. And those roads are being maintained, along with all the others throughout Beat 5.

Serving the people of Beat 5 for nearly eight years has been an honor and a privilege for me. I have always tried to represent the best interest of the people. With a sincere sense of humility I am asking for your vote and support again, so that we can continue to move forward in Hancock County.

Editorial

Everyone has to help on clean-up

Efforts are underway by the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, merchants and concerned residents in the beautification of Hancock County.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors approved Monday a resolution supporting the Chamber's "clean-up and beautification campaign."

Mayor Larry Bennett and Mayor Johnny Longo representing Bay St. Louis and Waveland also supported the Chamber's resolution at the Supervisor's meeting.

The efforts of the Chamber and Clean-up Chairman Warren Carver, who has been an advocate of beautification ever since we have known him, should be taken seriously by the citizens of our county.

The dumping of a load of sheetrock, used lumber, paint buckets, etc. at the foot of the Bay St. Louis bridge over the past weekend for sure isn't to our advantage as a community.

We as citizens can play a big part by taking license numbers, vehicle descriptions, etc. whenever we see such unlawful distribution of trash and garbage taking place.

The Bay St. Louis Police Department is investigating the incident, and we hope they find the culprit or culprits.

It was heart warming to see the youth of our community interested in beautification Tuesday when Bob Waterman, representing the Phi Kappa Fraternity offered to place painted barrels along US-90 for trash.

The idea is good, but then again there will be problems just like the City of Bay St. Louis, Waveland and the County has wherever dumpsters are placed.

Someone will come along and put goodness knows what in the barrels, or alongside them and create more clean-up problems. No matter how you look at it, at times we seem to be fighting a losing battle on clean-up.

Could be we may have to get the schools to help us out, start teaching the importance of beautification in the first grade through high school.

It would probably be several generations before it would stick and get everyone aware of the importance of having a clean place to live, but it would be a start.

It is not only the streets of Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County which needs attention for beautification, it is the business establishments and residences as well.

It is beyond us how some merchants and residents can live in such filth.

Some private residence in our community qualify as dumps, not sanitary landfills but plain old dumps.

How can people live with old cans, paper, garbage and goodness knows what else in their yards? Is it laziness or an attitude of I don't give a care?

In Bay St. Louis and Waveland regular garbage and trash pickups are made every week. Is it asking the residents too much to walk about their yards, carports, garages, etc., and pickup the paper, cans, debris and place it out for the garbage man.

Do these people need some leaning on, or may be the Board of Health could help by declaring their residences a place unsuitable for habitation (that is, dangerous to live in).

We congratulate the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce for the initial push they have given on beautification in Hancock County.

We wish to thank all of those who take the beautification seriously and do their part by helping in cleaning up yards, businesses and streets in their immediate areas.

Through the cooperation of all Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County can be a much cleaner place.

Health Tips

Good health habits ease risk to heart

(Presented as a public service by the Mississippi State Medical Association and this newspaper.)

Heart disease remains the leading cause of death in America today.

Although no single factor will prevent heart disease, good health habits are as favorable to the heart and circulatory system as they are to all body functions.

If you already have some form of heart disease, suitable medical management and good living habits can prolong life and make it more enjoyable.

The Mississippi State Medical Association offers some suggestions for the healthful living habits that will reduce the risk of heart disease.

Understand heart disease, don't fear it. Know about its causes and how to cope with it.

Learn your personal health status by periodic medical examinations. Discover early heart disease can often be better controlled.

If you're overweight, take off those extra pounds. Excess weight increases the risk of heart disease.

Exercise regularly. It can help strengthen your heart, improve your circulation, and help control your weight.

Don't smoke. Quitting now can greatly reduce your risk of heart disease.

Don't drink too much alcohol. Excessive drinking can increase blood pressure and contribute to heart disease.

Accept life's challenges, come to terms with those things you cannot change, and live your life as though you expect to live forever.

Some photographers or salesmen will show you a finished photo on the best grade photo printing paper made, yet when you receive your pictures, they are printed on a very low grade photo paper.

If you discover your pictures have been printed on this type of paper, this is the time for you to decline the order and ask for your money or deposit back.

The company representative may assure you the money will be refunded, but sometimes after some months have gone by and you attempt to contact the company, your letter may be returned marked "no such address."

Insist on receiving your refund on the spot. Don't wait. Transient photographers almost always work out of motels, hotels and automobiles. The representatives are never the owners, but they take your picture, show you the proofs, and take your money.

Photographs can be very expensive. Shop around - the permanent photo shops usually produce the best product with fewer problems.

enjoin those best qualified to seek office. When supporting a candidate for office, Mississippians should apply the three P's to the candidates - Intelligence, Integrity, and Industry.

The Mississippi Economic Council recommends that every citizen should be made aware of the responsibilities of citizenship, as well as the mechanics of government, and then encourage the citizen to participate in the government process.

The kind of government we have is based on the quality of the citizenry, and the quality of the citizenry is based on the quality of the education.

And Mississippians are urged to seek out and support quality candidates and quality education.

NEW DUMP SITE? - This pile of sheetrock, used lumber, paint cans, etc., is under investigation by the Bay St. Louis Police Department as to how it was deliberately dumped along US-90 at the Bay Bridge. A dumpster is supplied by the City for trash, but definitely not for this type of dumping, according to Mayor Larry Bennett. The County is in the midst of a clean-up campaign, but someone apparently doesn't give a ---. Bay Police Chief Douglas Williams reports his office is cracking down on such carelessness in dumping and will enforce every law within the City in helping Bay St. Louis become a cleaner City. If you see anyone doing such careless dumping, we ask you to please get a license number, description of the vehicle, etc. and call the police department. All information will be kept confidential, according to the police chief.

Auto theft avoided with FBI suggestions

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION CRIME RESISTANCE ALERT

The familiar saying, "don't tempt fate," is excellent advice for motorists. Although many drivers take measures to keep their vehicles from being stolen, they unwittingly tempt thieves by leaving valuable articles where they can be seen by potential criminals.

The following crime resistance measures may help protect valuables left in automobiles:

- Automobiles should be locked when unattended.

- Door lock buttons with knobs on the end should be replaced with the knobs that are tapered at the end, since the latter are harder to pull up with a wire inserted through an opening in the window.

- Valuables should not be left where they can be viewed by someone outside the car. Lock packages, coats, etc., in the trunk, or hide such items under the seat.

- Tape decks and citizens band (CB) radios should be mounted out of sight if possible. Consider using a portable rather than permanently installed antenna so it can be removed when a vehicle is unattended. The antenna can mark the car as a target for CB thieves.

- Tape decks and CB radios should be permanently marked with a unique number traceable to the owner. Motorists should contact local law enforcement for advice as to which number (state drivers license, etc.) should be utilized for this purpose since different numbers are used in different areas of the country. Decals indicating that all property within the vehicle has been marked with a traceable number should also be obtained and affixed to windows on each side of the vehicle.

Q: I had my picture made by an out-of-state photographer who was in town for a few days taking pictures and the proofs were the best I have ever seen. The company offered me the special package for $75.00 which they insisted I pay in advance. How can I be sure I'll receive my pictures?

A: If the company requires the full amount in advance, this is the key to a problem. It is alright to pay a small deposit - but not the full amount.

Sometime photographers will come into a town, make pictures, and return with very good proofs. This proof is not a finished product, so don't let it encourage you to buy additional pictures and pay before receiving the finished product.

when you receive your pictures, they are printed on a very low grade photo paper.

If you discover your pictures have been printed on this type of paper, this is the time for you to decline the order and ask for your money or deposit back.

The company representative may assure you the money will be refunded, but sometimes after some months have gone by and you attempt to contact the company, your letter may be returned marked "no such address."

Insist on receiving your refund on the spot. Don't wait. Transient photographers almost always work out of motels, hotels and automobiles. The representatives are never the owners, but they take your picture, show you the proofs, and take your money.

Photographs can be very expensive. Shop around - the permanent photo shops usually produce the best product with fewer problems.

Senator Thad Cochran

SPECIAL REPORT:

Electing a President

During my six years on Capitol Hill - first in the House and now in the Senate - I've learned that carefully listening during a debate on an issue can be just as important as talking.

In recent weeks I've listened with special attention as my fellow Senators have discussed with me the pros and cons of a proposed amendment to the Constitution. Sponsored by Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana, the amendment would change the way we elect our President, abolishing the present electoral college system in favor of a direct national election.

Under the electoral college system, states are allocated a number of electoral votes equal to the size of the state's Congressional delegation. Mississippi, with five Congressmen and two Senators, has seven electoral votes. In each state, the Presidential ticket getting the most votes on election day wins all of that state's electoral votes.

With direct election, the candidate receiving the most popular votes nationwide is the winner. Advocates of the direct election amendment point out that under the electoral college system it is possible for a candidate to receive the most popular votes, yet lose the election in the electoral college. This has happened once, back in 1888 when Benjamin Harrison edged out Grover Cleveland in a hotly contested, close election. It could have easily happened in our last Presidential election if Gerald Ford had carried Ohio and Mississippi. The concept of the direct election of the President does have a simple and basic appeal to the democratic spirit of most Americans. But as I've learned in my discussions with Senate colleagues, there are also some convincing arguments to be made against tampering with the electoral college.

Perhaps the most convincing is that direct election would undermine the fundamental constitutional principle of federalism - federalism being the idea that the United States are just that, a federation of fifty individual states. The electoral college system recognizes this by forcing a President not simply to get the most votes, but to get the most votes in the most states.

It can be argued that changing the way we count the votes in a presidential election would profoundly alter the way the campaigns for those votes would be conducted. With direct election, presidential hopefuls would not be forced to build a party base and nomination by a party might even lose its political significance. A successful media campaign could conceivably turn an unknown, inexperienced candidate into President of the United States virtually overnight. Presidential campaigns would not hinge so much on party work and interested citizens as on media consultants and communications experts whose work would take on an even greater significance under direct national election.

It is possible that under direct election, smaller states such as Mississippi would take on a diminished role in presidential elections. A Presidential candidate would be interested in campaigning for several thousand undecided Mississippians only if those votes meant the difference between winning and losing all of Mississippi's electoral votes. Direct election could result in presidential candidates concentrating nearly all of their attention in the country's most populous media markets and the largest cities.

Under the present system a winning Presidential candidate must attract a majority of the vote from more than one region of the country. One could not win by just getting a heavy vote in a few very populous areas.

With the electoral college, a candidate is therefore forced to identify with the interests of a coalition of voters that cuts across sectional and regional boundaries ensuring that the President will be a true national leader.

In finally weighing the arguments for and against direct election of the President, it is important to remember that our present system has served us long and well. Perhaps certain reforms are in order, such as requiring that electors vote for the candidates to whom they are pledged. But I see dangers in tampering with our constitution and an elective system that is unrivaled by any national democracy.

For these reasons, I'll be voting against the direct election amendment here in the Senate.

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

The Senate has misplaced its priorities in even considering at this time a resolution which would do away with the Electoral College and provide for the direct popular election of the President and Vice President. Matters of far greater interest and importance to the people are awaiting action.

The Electoral College system has stood the test of time and many challenges for more than 175 years. It was the result of a compromise between the large and small states which has worked well to preserve our union of states concept.

This proposed constitutional amendment goes straight to the heart of our federal system and could do great harm to it. We have already seen far too many of the once solid walls of federal-state relations breached and torn down.

Passage of this amendment would dilute and weaken the electoral role of the smaller states since under the electoral college system each state, regardless of size, has one electoral vote for each of its U.S. Senators and Representatives.

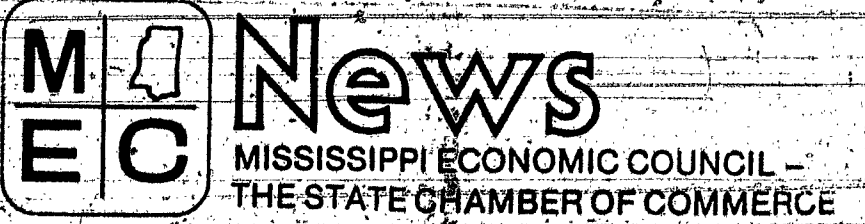

If this amendment were adopted, a candidate would carry two or three large states by a large margin and lose all the remaining states by a small margin and still be elected. That means you could have a candidate elected with purely regional interests and backgrounds.

No electoral method is perfect, but the chief executives produced by our system match any other in the world. It has produced many great Presidents and few poor ones. We should leave well enough alone.

There are other matters which are of far greater concern and importance to the nation and the people than is this amendment. One of these is the soaring inflation which is ravaging the country. This is grinding the people down, depleting their savings, and limiting their purchasing power. It is creating real hardship in many, many cases.

We in the Congress could better serve the people by addressing ourselves to this inflation problem. One of the ways which we can do this is to amend the Constitution to require a balanced federal budget and put the country on a pay-as-you-go basis.

I have long advocated a balanced budget amendment and introduced such an amendment again at the beginning of this year. I am urging that a balance-the-budget amendment be reported to the floor soon so Congress can have an opportunity to act positively on a matter of major importance which will make a real contribution toward solving our problems.

ACTION NEEDED NOW
Mississippi's governmental leadership for the next four years will be decided this year when voters consider the usual long list of candidates for the various offices from the local level to the office of governor. Sometimes the names on the ballot are not the best qualified to seek office. When supporting a candidate for office, Mississippians should apply the three P's to the candidates - Intelligence, Integrity, and Industry.

The Mississippi Economic Council recommends that every citizen should be made aware of the responsibilities of citizenship, as well as the mechanics of government, and then encourage the citizen to participate in the government process.

The kind of government we have is based on the quality of the citizenry, and the quality of the citizenry is based on the quality of the education. And Mississippians are urged to seek out and support quality candidates and quality education.

Moon signs, aching joints and curly hair were reliable weather indicators

By S. GRADY THIGPEN

In the Good Old Days, people generally had many skills that the present generation know little of.

For instance, the old time farmer had to know much about the weather in order to protect himself from loss, often substantial loss.

He had to know when and how to do many things that people living today have someone else do for them.

My father, from his own experience and from knowledge handed down to him from his forefathers, always tried to plant his crops on certain phases of the moon, as certain kinds of weather resulted on these changes.

He had to know how and when to do things for himself as there was no government weather forecasting, no radio to inform him of changes in weather, no TV to keep him posted on future weather conditions, no county agent to give him information, no newspaper to inform him of coming conditions—no politicians in Washington to tell him when and what to do.

The old time man was "on his own."

When I grew up, if a farmer was going to cut hay, he had to make his own weather forecast and he had to be accurate or he would lose his hay crop.

If he cut his hay and it was rained on before it cured and could be hauled into the barn, he would suffer great loss.

The weather forecasters we hear on radio and see on TV would most likely be really careful and much more apt to be correct in their forecasts if they stood to lose money, maybe their money, if wrong.

The old saying, "Necessity is the mother of invention," was true in the old days as it is now.

When it is necessary for you or me to develop a skill or an ability to achieve some purpose, we are almost sure to work out a solution to our problem.

The old timer would figure out from his own experience and from that handed down to him from his dad and granddad when to cut hay and when to do other things.

As I remember it, my father seldom took a loss on his hay harvest. I actually believe he was more accurate, as were other experienced farmers, on forecasting the weather than the weather forecasters we see on TV and hear on the radio.

The old timer continuously studied the weather. My father watched the smoke from the chimney in winter and the smoke from the kitchen flue year round to see if it went straight up, or if it spread out and maybe sank toward the ground.

He knew that if the moon was red and dirty looking, it was not likely to rain.

If fresh, sharp and clear looking, it was almost sure to rain. If the birds were flying high in the sky, it was a sign of stormy weather. If the clouds were thicker and soft looking and floated lower in the sky, it was an almost sure sign of rain.

If the clouds were scattered and high in the sky, rain was not likely.

There were many other signs to indicate rain, a dry spell, cold or hot weather, that I do now know, for I have not had the prod of necessity to make me inform myself.

Another most important time of the year to be accurate in guessing or estimating the weather was hog killing time.

If the hogs were killed and the weather turned warm too quickly, the meat would likely be lost, as there was no refrigeration back then.

So accurate was my father's calculation of the weather that I never knew him to lose fresh meat on account of the weather turning hot too quickly.

Yes, there was much practical, useful information that people knew in the old days that has been lost to us who live in these modern days. Back a short time ago, and to a certain extent now, almanacs were usually published by patent medicine companies and sent to everyone free.

They had in the old days, and have now, much useful information. They told the best time to plant, and often, how to plant and care for just about every crop.

I have often wondered how they could be so accurate in their long range forecasting. Sometime back I read how they would take the weather records for many years, and from this information they would figure the averages in making their weather forecasting. Even today many farmers all over the country refer to these old time almanacs which are still published and distributed free in all parts of the country.

I knew one old man who could unfailingly tell if it was going to rain several hours before the rain began to fall, which gave him ample time to prepare for it. "Why," he would say, "I knew early yesterday morning it was going to rain, so I hurried and got in all my hay before it started."

"How could you tell so far ahead of the time for the rain to start?" he was asked. He explained, "About 3 or 4 hours before it rains, my right big toe begins to ache."

"The College Survival Kit" By Irv Brechner-To Be Published In August By Bantam.

When Irv Brechner, author of THE COLLEGE SURVIVAL KIT, graduated from college in 1973, he realized how much he had learned about how to succeed in the college environment.

At the suggestion of friends and fellow students, he set down this hard-learned information in the form of THE COLLEGE SURVIVAL KIT, a 44-page pamphlet.

What Brechner realized was that students going off to college for the first time have one thing in common—they're unsure of what to expect. How will it compare with their previous high school life?

THE COLLEGE SURVIVAL KIT is designed to provide relief for all anxious freshmen, their parents, their teachers and their guidance counselors.

In the form of an all-inclusive manual about college ways and means, it contains over 50 "Survival Strategies" for coping with such inevitable questions and problems as:

—How to pay for a college education

—How to choose a major

—How to take notes

—How to organize writing a paper

—How and where to live

—And how to have a great social life—and still get the work done.

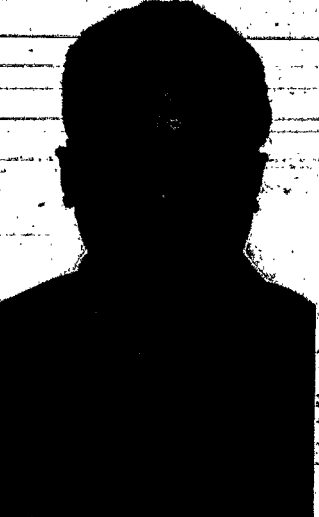

At 15, Irv Brechner created the original six-foot crossword puzzle, and he continues to contribute puzzles regularly to various publications.

He is now the publisher of "What's New!" a bi-monthly magazine about retail stores in Essex County, New Jersey, and he heads his own advertising agency.

The five-week ROTC advanced camp provides an opportunity for cadets to develop and demonstrate leadership capabilities in a field training environment.

Most cadets are fulfilling their advanced camp requirements during the summer between their junior and senior years in college. However, there will be a number of graduating seniors who will receive Army commissions at the completion of camp.

Allow is a cadet at the University of Southern Mississippi, Hattiesburg.

Park assumes Canoe Race sponsorship

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

The Jordan River Rally canoe race, threatened with possible cancellation, is still scheduled at McLeod Park in Hancock County Sunday, July 15.

The Pearl River Basin Development District, in conjunction with the Central Hancock Jaycees, had scheduled a combination canoe regatta, softball tournament and political rally July 13, 14 and 15.

But the Jaycee chapter, formerly known as the Kiln Jaycees, dropped its sponsorship of the events when faced with rigid enforcement of Hancock County Park Commission regulations calling for a $1 per car entrance fee to the park and a ban on the sale of beer or other alcoholic beverages.

Officers of the Kiln Jaycees in a letter to the editor of the Sea-Coast Echo published June 28 stated:

"The Central Hancock Jaycees regret to inform the citizens of Hancock County and Mississippi that we have been forced to cancel our advertised regatta, tournament and rally because the McLeod Water Park Commission, whose members are appointed by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, has voted not to waive the entrance fee to the park during these events."

"As a civic organization," the letter continues, "the Central Jaycees can not see fit to allow people to be charged a fee to gain access to a fund raising event when these funds are to be used in improving the education, recreation facilities and environment of the citizens of Hancock County."

McLeod Park Coordinator Mary

Callier of Clermont Harbor, who is also secretary-treasurer of the Hancock County Park Commission, said, "The park commission, with the full support of the board of supervisors, has agreed it would be an unwise policy to start making exceptions to its policies on alcoholic beverage sales and the entrance fee."

She said the Jaycees did not wish to pay this fee and members of the Jaycees became disappointed when she told them no beer would be allowed on park grounds.

"I hired a security guard for the park," Callier said, "and the $1 fee is used to pay that employee."

The coordinator said she hired the guard to prevent vandalism at the park. The canoe race, which was co-sponsored by the development district and the Jaycees, is the last of a series of canoe races which began April 23 with the Bogue Chitto River Fleet Trail.

Callier said, "The park commission is substituting for the Jaycees as co-sponsors of the canoe race."

The coordinator said Wednesday she is not yet aware of the financial obligations the commission has as the new co-sponsor, but the park's responsibilities presently include making physical preparations for the race.

Callier added she first learned the Jaycees had decided not to co-sponsor the event when she read it in the newspaper.

Officers of the county Park Commission include Hildon Shaw, Callier, Uless Bergeron Jr., Perry Gleson and Sheldon Sezenau.

Roaches

populations will worsen with the season, but roach populations are usually the same year round," Redditt said.

"You may see more during the summer, but the same amount are probably around in the winter," he explained.

Redditt, a licensed and bonded pest control agent, has lived in and operated his privately owned business from Bay St. Louis for three years.

He said the most important factor in cutting down chances of roach infestation after an extermination is good sanitation practices.

"Sanitation is the key to control over roaches. If a house were infested and the owner cleaned it out really well, including under and around cabinets, and then practiced strict sanitation standards, the insects would still find food and water," Redditt said, pointing to a picture of a book cover chewed to pieces by roaches.

"I do commercial exterminating, and I once went to a New Orleans hospital which was regulated by law to meet strict sanitation laws," he continued. "I found 30,000 roaches in that hospital kitchen," he said.

Redditt said the only way to eliminate roaches once a building is infested is to perform a "clean-out," or initial treatment.

"For the initial clean-out I do whatever is necessary. I use spray all the time, and often have to fog the home to kill the roaches," Redditt explained. He uses strong chemicals with use regulations imposed by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"The EPA regulates use of these chemicals because each has to be used per label direction, and each has a different effect on insects," Redditt said.

"I have to inspect each home to determine what treatment will be used. Each house requires a different treatment plan," he added. Redditt said a plan of monthly spraying should be initiated following a clean-out because eggs are not eliminated by the chemicals.

He said each female American roach is capable of living 440 days, and can lay as many as four to eight egg capsules, each containing 16 eggs, in a lifetime.

The German female roach in her lifespan lays four to eight egg capsules containing 24 to 48 eggs each.

After carrying the capsule, she must deposit the eggs within 24 hours of hatching or the offspring will not emerge, Redditt explained.

He said the roaches seen in homes are only approximately two percent of the total roach population, the other 98 percent surviving outside dwellings. The exterminator said the number one disadvantage of harboring roaches is an unpleasant odor—secretion which the insect deposits on countertops and food.

"Sometimes I can walk into a home and smell the odor, which is very pungent," Redditt said.

He also said the insects have the ability to carry disease, which can be transmitted to humans.

"Gastroenteritis is the primary disease roaches carry—they are natural vectors for the illness," he said.

"They also can transmit food poisoning, dysentery, diarrhea, and other illnesses," Redditt added.

He said there are approximately 3,500 species of roaches existing in the world today, 55 primary species in the United States.

"The types we generally run up against are American, Oriental, brown banded, field, lobster, and German," Redditt said.

According to the society, Los Angeles, Ca. was one of the first cities to open a spay-neuter clinic.

The chief emphasized the need to select contractors carefully, and offers his department's assistance in investigating a company's reputation before contracting a job.

"I would appreciate it if people will call the police department if they do not know the contractor who is doing work on their home," Williams said.

"I will be more than happy to tell them what I know about the firms," he added.

In addition to the police, the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce has a system devised to protect consumers.

The Chamber maintains a file on each of its members, a spokesman said, and if any problems arise and a consumer feels he is being mistreated, he can call the Chamber for action.

The Chamber secretary will then discuss the problem with the member and try to straighten out any difficulties, the spokesman added.

Athalia Pienas of the Hancock County Community Action Agency in Bay St. Louis said her agency also can direct consumers to a reputable contractor.

Ms. Pienas said her federal and state supported agency keeps a file on any firms which have had complaints filed against them, and if a consumer asks, will warn of those complaints.

"We aren't funded the same as the Better Business Bureau, but we basically work the same," Ms. Pienas said Friday.

"We often work with the attorney general's office in ironing out complaints," she added.

Doctor's home burglarized

Bay St. Louis Police are investigating a June 27 burglary at the home of Dr. M.J. Wolfe Sr. on Carroll Avenue in what Chief Douglas Williams said was an apparent attempt to steal drugs.

Williams said entry to the home was gained by slashing the screen from two outside doors and breaking the lock on an inside door.

A Sony cassette tape recorder was reported stolen from the home on 103 Carroll Ave., the police said.

Williams reported no drugs were in the house at the time of the burglary.

Court term

felony" in court this term, the trial slated for July 16.

Feigel allegedly "entered upon the real property of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anderson, Route 4 Box 41, Bay St. Louis, and did there unlawfully, wilfully, and feloniously peep through a window...for the lewd, licentious, and indecent purpose of spying upon the occupants," the charges state.

The alleged offense occurred Aug. 28, 1977. James Ernest Shifflett will be tried during the July term on seven charges of burglary of a dwelling.

He is charged with allegedly burglarizing the home of Mrs. Alfred E. Cazuloni, "502 St. Joseph Ave., Waveland, on Jan. 30 and Feb. 6, 1978, taking property worth $160; burglarizing the home of T.G. Brookman on Bourgeois Street in Waveland Dec. 15, 1977, taking property worth $1,269; On Jan. 23, 1978, entering the James Mocklin Sr. home on Terrace Street in Waveland; twice burglarizing the home of Ashley Garrett, 150 Favre St., Waveland, once on Feb. 9 and again on Feb. 18, 1978, taking $1,047 in property; and on Jan. 28, 1978 entering the home of E. Emboulas Sr., 148 Favre St., taking $227 in goods.

He is represented by John Genin; and no trial date has been set.

Glenn Paul Lewis faces two charges of uttering forgery and one charge of attempted uttering forgery.

He allegedly cashed two checks, one written for Harry J. Nance of Gulfport in the amount of $496 and the other belonging to James C. Baker of Mississippi City in the amount of $213. He also allegedly attempted to cash a check belonging to Esapa Gaston of Gulfport in the amount of $178, the charges indicate.

Charges of aggravated assault and first degree arson against Charles Edward (Chuck) Depree, convicted of murder on Jan. 27, 1979, are continued until a decision is reached on an appeal of that murder conviction by the State Supreme Court.

Kidnapping, armed robbery, and simple robbery charges against Eddie Beals are also continued pending the outcome of an appeal of a rape conviction during the April court term.

Beals was sentenced to life imprisonment after that April trial.

Other trials slated for the July term include:

Gregory J. Spiers for unlawful production of a controlled substance and stolen property;

James Robert Butler, grand larceny, auto;

Joseph Henry and Hillard Mercer, burglary of a dwelling;

Dorance W. Myers, speeding, assault, and disturbing the peace. This trial is an appeal of a Waveland City Court decision;

Charles and Pat Alfonso, shoplifting, also an appeal from Waveland City Court;

Michael Smith, driving while intoxicated and possession of a concealed weapon, an appeal from Justice Court, District Two;

Cheryl Garcia, disturbing the peace, an appeal from Waveland City Court;

And Robin Maurigi, assaulting police, also an appeal from Waveland City Court.

School bus

sportation." County School Superintendent Terrell Randolph supported Ms. Ponder saying, "I feel the authority to make the decision whether to allow the group use of the bus lies here (with the school board)."

The superintendent added, "The laws appear conflicting, but I do believe the Board may legally furnish transportation for these children."

Board member Johnny Banks exclaimed, "If we have got to open a can of worms to allow these handicapped children to use a bus then I say let us open the can."

Board members noted other organizations may ask to use school buses if the handicapped children are allowed usage, thus opening a can of worms.

Board member Monvel Cuevas expressed concern over the legality of allowing the handicapped children usage of the bus.

He included a provision requiring a certified bus driver operate the bus and that TSP be charged 15 cents per mile for usage.

Board members also warned the school district would be liable for damages if a bus accident occurred.

However, Randolph said the liability incurred would be no greater than liability the district faces with regular school children.

Board president W. J. Ponder said, "I think parents should assume the responsibility of transporting their parents should assume."

"I believe," he continued, "this country is becoming too socialist. I think the government is interfering too much with the individual's way of life."

"We should draw a line somewhere to control socialism," he warned.

Board member Louie Ladrer moved TSP be allowed use of the bus and board member Monvel Cuevas seconded the unanimously approved resolution.

Woodrow Ladrer remarked, "I voted for the resolution because I feel we are doing what is best educationally for the students in our school district."

In other business the Board:

Authorized an application be submitted for grant funds which will be used to acquire Silver Creek Acres. The property will be used as a school for exceptional children.

Declined a motion by Louie Ladrer to employ Mrs. Mary Deschere as Cafeteria Supervisor for the school district.

Contrasting beef, feed prices good for specialized feeding

By MIKE WINDHAM
Extension Service

Livestock producers should look closely at creep feeding young calves this year.

The latest word from Extension Service Livestock Nutritionist Dr. Robert Stewart is that current and projected high beef prices and relatively low feed prices are ideal situations for creep feeding young calves.

Dr. Stewart says producers can creep feed their calves and pick up a potential weight increase of 100 pounds by the time the calf is weaned.

There are two reasons for considering creep feeding: first and the most important is the intent to increase weaning weights; second is to help relieve stress on young mother cows.

Dr. Stewart says this is particularly important when you're talking about first calf heifers who are still trying to grow.

The term "creep feeding" refers to feeding an outside source of protein and energy to young calves while they're still nursing.

It's a food supplement to go along with milk and grazing. There is no general rule of thumb to creep feeding calves.

Last year's drought stress on summer pastures and this year's flooding on many pastures are situations where creep feeding should be strongly considered to relieve stress.

However, recommended creep feeding has to be decided by producers on an individual basis.

"Pure-bred breeders feed their calves on a regular basis, but they are producing a different product," he says.

Commercial producers need to creep feed when calf prices are high and feed prices are low.

In the life of an average calf, up to the third month from a nutritional standpoint, the mother's milk provides everything the young calf needs.

Creep feeding pays off between the third month and weaning age. During this segment of the calf's life, milk provides only about half of the needed protein and energy requirements of the young animal.

A combination of milk and grass will give the calf a potential gain of only 400 pounds. A combination of grass, creep feeding and milk means the potential gain is up to 500 pounds for the same young calf.

The Extension livestock nutrition specialist says creep feeding isn't always profitable. Economically, to make a profit, producers should get a pound of calf weight for each eight pounds of creep feed the calf consumes.

This means a calf will require about 800 pounds of feed to obtain 100 pounds of weight on a creep feeding program.

When choosing a good creep feed ration, remember that the feed is a supplement to the high quality milk the calf is getting. It must meet the same high quality standards.

Dr. Stewart recommends a ration containing 14-16 percent crude protein, 65-70 percent TDN and about 10 percent crude fiber. There should be no urea in the ration.

There are many good rations on the market. Your county agent can give you more information about getting a good feed ration for your calves.

Remember: The final weaning weight is the product a livestock producer is trying to produce. Creep feeding young calves may be one way to increase weaning weight this year.

MISSISSIPPI WEEKLY WEATHER REPORT

WEEK ENDING JULY 1

WEATHER SUMMARY
(National Weather Service): The week began hot but after most of the week's rain fell on Sunday and Monday, temperatures dropped considerably. Gradual warming was the rule Tuesday through Friday.

Temperatures averaged 4 to 8 degrees below normal. Kosciusko was lowest with 53 degrees on the 26th and 27th. Wiggins was the highest with 96 degrees on the 23rd. Rainfall ranged from zero to 2.31 inches at Meridian. The largest 24-hour amount was 1.96 inches at Holly Springs on the 24th.

A cold front entered the state Friday night, reaching south Mississippi by Saturday night and remained there. Showers and thunderstorms along and ahead of the front brought rainfall amounts generally under one-half inch.

CROP SUMMARY:
Soybean planting and wheat harvest were nearing completion. The main farm activities included hay harvest and weed control in the cotton and soybeans.

Soil moisture was mostly adequate in the Delta and in central and northern counties.

Soil moisture in the east central counties and in the southern one-third of the state was mostly short. An average of 5.5 days was suitable for fieldwork compared to 5.7 days last week and 6.1 days for the same week last year.

Soybean planting was 96 percent complete compared to 95 percent last year and 88 percent average. About 85 percent of the acreage was up to a stand compared to 83 percent last year and 80 percent average. The crop was in good to fair condition.

The cotton acreage was 70 percent aking compared to 76 percent last year and 63 percent average. About 8 percent of the acreage was blooming compared to 10 percent at this time last year. Only a few fields were setting bolls compared to 10 percent at this time last year. Only a few fields were setting bolls compared to 10 percent at this time last year.

Only a few fields were setting bolls compared to one percent of the acreage setting bolls last year and 12 percent average for the date. The crop was in good to fair condition.

The rice acreage was in good condition. The corn acreage was 80 percent silked compared to 63 percent last year and 49 percent average. About 23 percent of the acreage had reached the dough stage compared to 22 percent last year. The crop was in good to fair condition.

Sorghum planting was 95 percent complete compared to last year's 86 percent and the acreage of 86 percent.

Sweetpotato planting was nearing completion with 96 percent of the acreage planted compared to 97 percent last year and 92 percent average.

Winter wheat harvest was 96 percent complete, equal to both last year's and average progress.

Hay crops were 43 percent harvested compared to last year's 44 percent and the average of 38 percent.

Peaches were 20 percent harvested equal to last year's progress compared to the average of 45 percent.

Watermelons were 10 percent harvested compared to 6 percent at this time last year.

Pasture condition was rated mostly good. Diesel supplies were rated mostly tight. Gasoline supplies were rated tight to adequate. L.P. Gas supplies were rated mostly adequate.

COMMENTS
QUITMAN CO. "Plant bug pressure heavy in cotton but beneficial counts also high. Need 5-7 days of sunshine on cotton. Weed problems in some soybean fields."

BENTON CO. "Four to five inches of rain over the weekend caused a bit of damage, but it was needed very badly."

PONTIAC CO. "Some blister beetle damage in soybeans. One and one half inches of rain really helped this past weekend. Gardens having trouble with root rot."

YAZOO CO. "Two-three inches rain on 6-24-79. Insect pressure in cotton subsiding. Beans responding to Sunday's rain. Many areas of low land in delta still remain unplanted."

COPIAH CO. "Could use a little of that excessive water that ran off in April and May."

HANCOCK CO. "Rain is badly needed to help get soybean crop up to a stand. Vegetables and pastures need moisture badly. Damage is showing up rapidly."

Ag Affairs by Ed Blake

President Carter made trumps out of trucks and turned his hand over to his partner and left the game to attend to other business as the nation's energy fiasco took on a strong resemblance to a sloppily played card game.

And farmers, as important as their hands are, don't like to be trumped.

Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said from his Park Ridge, Illinois, farm organization headquarters late last week that farmers expect, and will accept, nothing less than top priority for needed fuel supplies.

He referred to President Carter's recent suspension of the Department of Energy's special Rule 9 which had guaranteed farmers top priority on fuel supplies for the 1979 crop.

"We insist Rule 9 be replaced with a new top fuel priority to all phases of food and fiber production and distribution, including transportation," Grant said.

The farm spokesman added that it does little good for the farmers of the nation to produce a crop without provisions for moving the commodities through the market system to consumers.

The President's action essentially cancelled farm fuel priority and gave it to the nation's trucks instead in an effort to appease them in their demands which have resulted in a nationwide trucking strike, boycott and violence in many states where independent truckers have tried to carry goods despite the strike.

"The protest action of the Independent Truckers Association which has disrupted the flow of goods and services throughout the nation reveals what can happen when any one link in the food distribution chain breaks down," Grant said.

The strike began in mid-June at the outset of the fruit and vegetable harvesting season as truckers at critical distribution points in the nation refused to load ripening tomatoes, peaches, cherries and other highly perishable commodities. The strike's timing also coincided with the beginning of the bulk of the fruit and vegetable shipments from the West Coast which, if it continues, will create a massive food shortage across the nation.

Grant said the American Farm Bureau Federation already has received reports of milk being dumped due to spoilage and chickens dying that were being hauled to slaughter houses. The Farm Bureau head appealed to Mike Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association to end the boycott.

He said Farm Bureau is opposed to violence and does not think that's the way to do things. He pledged to the truckers that if the protest is halted, Farm Bureau will stop its efforts to help solve some of the real problems of concern to both truckers and farmers.

In Mississippi's "Highway 11

Arant of Ruleville, president of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation, said farmers have grave concerns over the President's action from both the production and harvest standpoints. He said Mississippi experienced wet and cold weather conditions in the state this spring that delayed crop plantings, particularly in the Yazoo River basin of the lower delta where landowners had to wait for floodwaters to recede and the land to dry out before planting could begin at the eleventh hour.

"Some of them are hardly through planting," Arant said, "and still have a long way to go before their crops are made and they have no assurances that diesel fuel will be delivered when they run out."

"And coming on us hard are our harvest requirements both in the weeks ahead for watermelons and cantaloupes that will be ripening and ready to move within the next week, and for Mississippi's major cash rowcrops in the fall season. We have a host of other enterprises important to the state and nation that depend on two-way trucking services, and none of us can afford either fuel cut-offs or boycotts."

Arant said the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation is working to help solve some of the real problems of concern to both truckers and farmers.

Mississippi manatee fares well in Florida

The Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs has learned that the male manatee or sea cow discovered in the small craft harbor in Gulfport in January and taken to Sea World oceanarium near Orlando, FL, is recovering from the lung infection and dehydration from which he was suffering when found.

Beauregard, as the manatee was named, was treated and is now sharing a tank at Sea World with a female manatee. Sea World researchers and officials of the National Fish and Wildlife Service (NWFS) are taking blood tests to monitor hormone levels. They hope to study breeding responses and hormone cycles in the two mammals.

Little research on manatees has been done and man's understanding of the manatee's physiology and habits may be critical to the species' survival.

The manatee (Trichechus manatus) is an aquatic mammal found in the tropical waters of North and South America.

It prefers waters where the temperature never falls below 70 degrees F (21 degrees C) but has occasionally been found in waters as far north as the Carolinas and Virginia during summer.

When temperatures drop, the mammal seeks refuge in Florida's warmer waters, wintering in rivers with natural springs and protected bays and in waters near electric power-generating plants. Sudden drops in temperature can cause lung infections and pneumonia.

The manatee is docile, black or gray in color and resembles a seal in shape. It is a vegetarian, feeding on plants and grasses in the water.

The manatee is on the U.S. Endangered Species List and is threatened by cold temperatures, man's flood gates, boat propellers and pollution.

There are probably less than 1,000 manatees still in existence in the United States, and Florida has the largest numbers. Because of this, the Florida Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has established "slow speed"

"idle speed" and "motor-boats prohibited" areas in rivers and bays where manatees are concentrated.

In November 1978, Florida DNR launched a statewide media campaign to make people aware of the endangered manatee.

The manatee is apparently faring better now than in recent years. In 1977, the Florida Fish and Wildlife Service reported 99 documented deaths.

In 1978, the number was down to 78, and only 17 deaths were recorded for the first two months of this year as compared to 25 for that period last year. Beauregard is about nine feet long and weighed 800 pounds when first taken to Sea World.

John Rutherford, spokesman for Sea World, said a mammal of his length should weigh 950-1,000 pounds. Although still underweight, Beauregard has gained 75 pounds and is now eating about $90 worth of romaine lettuce each day.

Asked about Beauregard's future, Rutherford said he will be released back into the wild when researchers, at Sea World and NWFS decide he is all right.

Fighting inflation

When to retire reviewed by Consumer Specialist

MONEY TALKS

By NORINE BARNES
The present high rate of inflation is causing many people to have second thoughts about when they will retire, and on what income they will retire.

People with a fixed income, which includes many retired people, are finding that their purchasing power is decreasing by almost 10 percent a year. At that rate, "You're on your way to the poor house," says E. Scott Maynes, chairman of the Department of Consumer Economics and Housing at Cornell University.

At the current inflation rate, one dollar will be worth only 50 cents in eight years; in 16 years it will be worth 25 cents. This could cause serious hardships to many people living on fixed incomes.

Because of this, many workers are now opting to retire at a later, rather than earlier, date. This will give many individuals additional time and income to plan for their retirement, plus the satisfaction of pursuing a career for a longer period of time.

Government is beginning to see later retirement as a desirable trend, because it means less strain on the Social Security system. The more people working the less people the system will have to support.

Personal savings programs are also playing a less important role in many people's retirement plans, because of inflation.

Some 60 percent of your income should be considered a satisfactory goal to provide for retirement. But with inflation at nine percent, our ability to save for retirement has been grossly impaired.

As Maynes explains it, "If you had put one dollar into a savings account 10 years ago, you were less than one percent a year ahead of inflation. That's not enough!"

Investing in the stock market, a popular strategy for retirement a decade ago, is no longer practical for most people because stock market prices do not automatically go up with inflation.

"If you had put one dollar into the stock market 10 years ago, the rate of return now would be minus two percent," Maynes says.

Because personal savings and investments are no longer capable of providing sufficient retirement income for many people, more and more people have to depend on social security when they retire.

Since 1974 the social security system has been indexed to provide a reasonable margin against the damages of inflation. As the cost of living goes up, so do the benefits paid by social security.

"In this country, social security beneficiaries are one of the few not-business groups that are protected against the ravages of inflation," Maynes points out. But the Social Security System may have difficulty keeping up with inflation and providing for the great numbers of retired people that it will have to support.

Taxes have already been increased, and further social security tax increases are possible.

"We need to develop a proper perspective about social security taxes," Maynes concludes. "We must balance the cost and pain to our pocketbook with our responsibilities to the elderly and infirm...always bearing in mind that you and I will get there some day."

Pre-school program offered in Pass

A summer pre-school program conducted by the Pass Christian School District for the program will be held from Friday, July 6, from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon. Registration will begin on Monday, July 9. The program will operate through Friday, August 10. Classes will be held in the Pass Christian Elementary School.

Garrett, Carter to wed July 21

Mrs. Barbara J. Garrett of Bay St. Louis announces the engagement of her daughter, Julie Rita Anne, to Airman Anthony Gerard Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dixie Carter Sr. of New Orleans, La.

The bride-elect, a 1976 graduate of Our Lady's Academy, Bay St. Louis, is attending Pearl River Junior College where she is majoring in sociology. She is presently employed as an office clerk at Bay Senior High School.

The prospective groom, a 1976 graduate of St. Stanislaus, Bay St. Louis, attended Tulane University, New Orleans.

In high school he was an Alpha honor roll student, a member of the National Honor Society, and was named to Who's Who Among America's High School Students. He was awarded an ROTC scholarship and is presently serving in the United States Air Force.

The wedding will be solemnized Saturday, July 21, at 2 p.m. in St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church, Bay St. Louis, with a reception following in St. Rose cafeteria. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

July is sowing time for fall garden

By MRS. C. H. WOOD
State Garden Clubs

July is a good time to sow seeds for color during the fall months. Annuals to be started now are marigolds, petunias, zinnias, cockscomb, and petunias.

Plant caladiums for late summer color. Root camellias, azaleas, hollies and other ornamentals.

Keep azaleas and camellias well watered. If it continues to stay dry a deep soaking is best for gardens and lawns. Plants in hanging baskets need watering often. If possible, submerge the basket occasionally.

Summer lawns need their last nitrogen application. High-nitrogen fertilizers are 12-6-6 and 10-5-5. Feed chrysanthemums every two weeks with a complete fertilizer. After dahlias have been cut back to about half of their growth give them a light application of fertilizer.

Give your flowers and vegetables a balanced feeding of 10-10-5 or 12-5-4.

Keep roses sprayed or dusted to control pests and diseases.

To encourage new growth and flowering on young petunias pinch back the branches.

It is time to divide bearded iris. Replant outer rhizomes from one to two feet apart with the tops of rhizomes about one-eighth inch below the soil that has been thoroughly mixed with compost or well-rotted manure. Siberian iris need full sun. Japanese iris prefer partial shade and moist, well-drained soil.

Keep your shrubs and flower beds well mulched with bark, pine straw or compost. If your spring-flowering bulbs haven't been dug and divided in the past three to five years and the clumps are crowded, they need to be divided. Dig up the clumps of bulbs and put them in a shady, dry spot.

Leave soil on the clumps. In a few weeks after the bulbs and the soil have dried out, you'll be able to remove the soil and separate the bulbs without rearing the roots. Store the bulbs in a cool, dry place until time to replant.

Fertilize houseplants every two to four weeks during the summer to promote continued growth. Keep plants well watered and protected from direct sun.

Grow fall tomatoes from suckers by allowing the suckers to become four to six inches long, then snap them off the plant with your thumbnail or pruning shears.

Plant suckers directly in prepared garden soil, or root the suckers first in peat pots. Insert the lower half of the stem in soil. Roots will form on the buried portion of the stem. Be sure to keep the suckers well watered.

Correction

A Sea Coast Echo report Sunday, July 1, in the wedding of Miss Mary Beth Schenkel and Kevin Lee Angstadt, inadvertently failed to list Kevin Schenkel of Waveland among the wedding party's groomsmen.

The Echo regrets this error.

Mrs. Mary Beth Schenkel and Kevin Lee Angstadt were married Sunday, July 1, at the home of Mrs. Schenkel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Schenkel, of Waveland.

The bride-elect, a 1976 graduate of Our Lady's Academy, Bay St. Louis, is attending Pearl River Junior College where she is majoring in sociology. She is presently employed as an office clerk at Bay Senior High School.

Cochran seeks overseas missionary tax exemption

Mississippi's Thad Cochran has introduced legislation to exempt from federal income taxes the first $20,000 earned by overseas American missionaries.

Cochran said this bill was needed because the Foreign Earned Income Act of 1978 now requires religious and charitable workers in foreign countries to pay from $1,000 to $4,000 annually in additional U.S. income taxes.

"Tax hikes of this size would have an adverse impact on private missionary and charity activities," said Cochran.

"In recent years, many charities have experienced increasing difficulty in adjusting pay scales to keep pace with inflation and the declining dollar overseas," said Cochran.

"Charities, unlike their counterparts in private industry, have no mechanism for passing along cost increases to their 'customers,' and can increase salaries only cutting the services they provide."

Added Cochran, "Since workers in charitable organizations overseas are compensated modestly, the effect of a tax increase of this magnitude would be enormous. Many workers would be faced with a hard decision as to whether or not they could remain overseas."

Cochran believes that the authors of the 1978 Act did not realize the impact that law would have on workers in charitable and religious organizations.

Cochran pointed out the tax increase specified in the Foreign Earned Income Act of 1978 is directly contrary to federal policy as established by Congress in the Foreign Assistance Act.

A Museum Good Enough to Eat!

Massachusetts is a state renowned for its vast number of museums and historical places—from Bunker Hill to Buzzards Bay. It's also a state that boasts one of the most unique and specialized museums in the country—devoted exclusively and entertainingly to celebrating the eventful past and present of a tiny red native American fruit.

This singular showplace, "Cranberry World," is located in the historic community of Plymouth on the same gentle bay where, over 350 years ago, the Pilgrims first dropped anchor to establish this nation's roots.

Today, Plymouth, often called "America's Home Town," is not only a popular family-oriented tourist mecca, it is also the capital of the American cranberry industry and home base of the nation-wide Ocean Spray Cranberry cooperative.

Three "mini-bogs" of Cranberry bogs abound in the surrounding two counties which share a place with Massachusetts, producing most of the country's cranberries. Three "mini-bogs" offer a glimpse of "Cranberry World" as part of a permanent outdoor exhibit.

Inside, visitors to the admission-free waterfront museum are treated to dozens of displays, exhibits, and audio-visual presentations that trace the cranberry's history from its earliest social and commercial cial history of the popular berry. The saga begins back in pre-colonial days when local Indian tribes first attributed magical medicinal properties to the wild-growing fruit.

Since opening last year, "Cranberry World," only a quarter-mile from Plymouth Rock and Mayflower II, has become one of the most visited attractions in museum-filled Plymouth.

Free Drinks High among the reasons for its popularity are the refreshing cranberry drinks and cranberry breads served to every visitor with the compliments of the Ocean Spray Company. Special cooking demonstrations are also held at 11 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. daily when visitors can sample the cranberry specialties developed in the museum kitchen.

Additional information may be obtained by writing or calling "Cranberry World," Water Street, Plymouth, MA 01960, (617) 749-1000.

MSU To Host Elderhostel Weeks Of July 15 And 22

MISSISSIPPI STATE — A $115 registration fee per week covers all costs, including room, board, courses and extracurricular activities. This low fee enables senior citizens on fixed incomes to participate in the program.

There are now 235 host colleges in 41 states participating in the program which provides mini-courses for senior citizens who are young and enthusiastic enough to "rough it" in a college dormitory," says Dr. Gail Cotton, program coordinator, gerontology, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Elderhostel is coming to Mississippi State University (MSU) the weeks of July 15 and July 22. Three non-credit, college-level courses will be offered each session. In addition, Elderhostelers may participate in recreational and social experiences and meet with college students to explore ideas in areas of mutual interest.

"Elderhostel combines the best traditions of education and hosting. It is low on luxury and high on hospitality," Dr. Cotton explains. "campus life and academic stimulation enrich the lives of the senior citizens involved and those of the students with whom they have contact. The 60 or 70 years of life experiences which the Elderhostelers bring to the program have produced students who are open, understanding, receptive to new ideas and eager to share them," she adds.

Although classes are held to 30 to 35 participants, some commuters may participate. Commuter fees are $60 per person for each week. This all-inclusive fee covers instruction and all campus activities provided for resident Elderhostelers. Commuters are responsible for their meals and are encouraged to attend the full day of activities. Opportunities are also provided for them to become acquainted with the resident Elderhostelers.

Courses for the first session are: Rudora Welby's Fiction, Practical Horticulture and Mississippi Personalities. The second session's courses are: Mississippi Beginnings, Architectural Heritage of Mississippi and Basic Photography. All courses will be taught by MSU faculty and staff. No exams, no grades and no homework will be required.

Registration blanks, as well as more detailed information on the courses being offered, are available through the Extension home economist in each county. For resident Elderhostelers, a $25 deposit must accompany the registration form which will be sent upon request. This deposit will be refunded if the senior citizen is unable to attend.

BUS SCHEDULE
Due to a cut in our allotment of gasoline, we have to cut our bus pick up schedule to twice a month.

All routes will be picked up after you get your Social Security check and again two weeks later. Please ask the bus driver, Rev. Hall, for a schedule.

We will only be going to the doctors offices twice a month also. This month the dates are July 17 and 31.

August dates for special doctor visits will be 14th and 28th. These dates are for local doctors and Gulfport specialists. Please make your appointments on these dates if you need a ride with us.

If there is any change in the gasoline allotment, we will review our schedule and try to give you more service. We know that we can count on you to assist us with this problem.

FUNDING
We have presented our budget for the year beginning October 1, 1979 through September 30, 1980 to the Board of Supervisors and we want to thank them for accepting it.

We have always made a special effort to support our programs, attend our functions, and care about our people. We do very much appreciate this.

All of the folks at the Courthouse have done the same. A big thanks to all of you.

The City of Bay St. Louis has also accepted our budget as presented and will advise us if they have to make any change. They gave every indication of going along with us.

VA News

Q — I am the widow of a Korean conflict veteran and have one dependent child. Our combined annual income is $1,916. Am I eligible for a widow's pension under the new improved law?

A — You may be entitled to a widow's pension since your income is below the $3,425 limit for a widow with one dependent child. Contact your nearest Veterans Administration regional office for information and assistance.

Q — Due to a financial emergency, I am thinking about surrendering my National Service Life Insurance policy. I am hesitant to do this because I have had this policy since World War II. Is there an alternative available to me?

A — You may consider the option of applying for a maximum policy loan. You can receive 94 percent of the policy's cash value at five percent interest. This would permit you to repay the loan and keep your insurance in force.

Q — Does the Veterans Administration recognize "common law" marriage?

A — The VA will recognize "common law" marriage if the state in which the parties reside does so. Proof of the "common law" marriage must be established to VA satisfaction to qualify for benefits.

us as they always do. We know how often the mayor and folks from City Hall have helped us and done extra things around here for us.

A Big "Thank You" to them and the City Council for their support.

The City of Waveland is also reviewing our budget and we expect them to accept it as submitted also, if it is at all possible. They have been most cooperative with the Senior Citizens Organizations there.

They donate their facilities for many Senior Citizens activities other than ours.

The AARP, Waveland Senior Citizens, Senior Employment, and Senior Aide Home Repair Service all have their headquarters at the Civic Center.

The Department of Public Welfare supplies our Federal money for our programs. We hope they will continue to do this as we sure get a lot for the

PATRIOTIC LUNCH
It was a gala event at our Senior Center when more than 100 seniors joined together to celebrate July 4th in honor of our great country.

Mrs. Esther Bussey was at the piano, everyone joined in and sang patriotic songs.

Door prizes were red, white and blue carnation flower arrangements. Questions on our history were asked and the Senior having the correct answer was awarded a flower arrangement.

Thanks to our Nutrition Department for a fine meal. We enjoyed barbecued chicken, potato salad, and peas. To top it off, we had HOME MADE ICE CREAM made by the staff.

Jim Hoda, recreation director, wants to thank all of the staff and volunteers for the beautiful decorations and all of the hard work that made this party was such a success.
